

Grey histograms show relative frequency only, scaled to panel height with no numeric axis. The two categorical panels use a square-root scale so small classes stay visible.